The Sydney Boys High School Council

The Sydney Boys High School Council was established in June, 1995, pursuant to the provisions of the Education Act, 1990. It replaced the Sydney High School Council which had operated since 1951.

Its aims and objectives were different from those of the Sydney High School Council. However, it carried on the coordinating role of the previous Council.

Aims of the Sydney Boys High School Council:

- ✓ To enable formal participation by the school community in the planning and governance of Sydney Boys High School.
- ✓ To foster closer links between the school and its community.

The Sydney Boys High School Council (cont.)

Objectives

- (i) To discuss and ratify broad school policy in relation to:
- The aims and educational goals of the school
 - Its educational priorities and needs
 - The welfare of students
 - Its relationships with the community

Consistent with the continued operation of the school as an academically selective school operating within both the public education system and the Athletic Association of the Great Public Schools.
